Uncertainty Reigns

Kia ora tatou,

The increase in business optimism that I noted in our previous newsletter may be short-lived as there now appears to be increased uncertainty as to whether or not the Reserve Bank of New Zealand (RBNZ) will decide to increase the Official Cash Rate (OCR) in February and/or April. This news comes on the back of the latest unemployment figures, which stand at 4.0 per cent, which is lower than the 4.3 per cent that had been predicted.

The RBNZ could view this as a sign that the economy is doing better than expected, thus increasing pressure to hold interest rates at their current levels for longer, dispelling the hope that we may have seen a reduction in these rates at some time later this year. Additionally, should the RBNZ decide to increase the OCR, which is something that economists' opinions are divided on, to continue to drive inflation down towards its 1 – 3 per cent target, it could push interest rates even higher. Either way it's not good news for those members whose cashflow is already diminished as the high cost of business loans and mortgages, which may increase even further, look set to remain in place until early next year before any respite can be expected.

I sincerely hope the resilience that many businesses have had to develop in recent years stands them in good stead to overcome these ongoing economic challenges and any others that may lie ahead.

Ngā mihi mahana,

Kevin O'Leary

What is the difference between an effective leader and a manager?
In this session we look at research that explores what leaders of winning companies are doing to close the gap between their top and bottom performers. We share 2 or 3 actions that may be implemented tomorrow to enrich development conversations with your team. We also look at what people want from leaders and how to get people to 'take action' without being constantly told what to do!

- Management vs. Leadership – The difference
- Getting people to take action
- What people want from leaders
- A model for rich and insightful conversations
- Intent vs. Commit
